Fall... The Finest Time For Fort Wilderness Fun!

If you're a camping or RV buff, you'll want to plan an autumn vacation visit to the Walt Disney World Fort Wilderness Campground Resort. You see, fall is the right time to enjoy this picturesque, 650-acre retreat. Golden sunshine and almost-perfect Central Florida temperatures make Fort Wilderness a natural paradise, enhancing the pleasure of hiking, biking and canoeing along the miles of wilderness trails and quiet streams.

And since school is back in session during the fall, you'll find fewer guests, allowing you to take in the recreational facilities, the nighttime entertainment and the beautifully preserved environment at your own leisurely pace.

More than 800 campsites are tucked away within the Fort Wilderness Campground, and every campsite is equipped with such modern conveniences as 110-volt electrical outlets, charcoal grill, water, picnic tables, waste container and sanitary disposal system. Convenient comfort stations offer private showers, ice dispensers, laundry facilities, public telephones and restrooms.

But the main attraction of Fort Wilderness lies in its bounty of recreational opportunities, which take on added appeal during the glorious months of autumn. In addition to hiking, biking and canoeing, you'll find such delightful diversions as horseback riding, fishing (from streams teeming with bass), water skiing, sailing and swimming on a white, sandy beach.

For the young ones, there are swings, slides and climbing bars located throughout the camping area; a free Petting Farm inhabited by a friendly bunch of furry and feathered critters; and a livery of more than 50 of the most beautiful horses in the country, tended to by their very own blacksmith!

Buses and water launches shuttle Fort Wilderness guests from the campgrounds to the Magic Kingdom. But fun-filled adventure also awaits just adjacent to the campgrounds. That's where you'll find River Country, a haven of water fun for everyone.

At River Country, you can sun on the beach of Bay Cove...shoot the White Water Rapids on a inner tube... swoosh down flume-style slides in "Hoop 'n' Holler Hollow"...or, splash around in our "Ol' Swimming' Hole."

After sundown, you can come together under a "harvest moon" for a crackling-good campfire singalong. A Disney feature film classic is shown as part of the festivities.

Or, you can put some hands together at Pioneer Hall for the "Hoop-Dee-Doo Musical Revue"; a rip-roaring dinner show highlighted by high-steppin' performers, and by such hearty vittles as barbecued ribs, fried chicken, corn on the cob, strawberry shortcake, beer and sangria.

So, experience all the wonder of Fort Wilderness at a time when the weather is great and the crowds are fewer. Fall is the finest time for Fort Wilderness fun!

Disney Hitches Wagon To Stars

On their way to Florida, the gentle giants will star in state fairs across the U.S.A. In Chicago, they will pull the Swan Bandwagon, circa 1907, which was used in the Disney movie, "Toby Tyler," and later donated to the Circus World Museum by Walt Disney Productions. Performance schedule follows:

Breakfast By The River

Some people say that breakfast is the most important meal of the day. And well it may be—for the family arriving early at Disneyland prepared to spend the day enjoying its colorful adventures and attractions. To fortify Mom and Dad and the youngsters with energy for a long exciting day in the Magic Kingdom, there's nothing like a wholesome breakfast of bacon and eggs and authentic Mickey Mouse pancakes!

Children's plates, with decorated Mickey's face hot cakes, along with a complete breakfast menu, are served all day at the Oscar Mayer River Belle Terrace in Frontierland. Oscar Mayer's ham, bacon and sausages complement egg, pancake and waffle dishes cooked to order and served buffeteria style in the pleasant southern plantation atmosphere of this sparkling restaurant. Guests may also enjoy their morning meals (lunches and summertime dinners) at umbrella-topped tables on the terrace overlooking the Rivers of America, where the Mark Twain may come steaming by.

Oscar Mayer was welcomed to the Park's family of participants in 1971 and has been associated with the River Belle Terrace ever since. Oscar Mayer's meat and diversified products are known world-wide for their quality, freshness and wholesomeness. Their hot dogs are a lunchtime favorite at the river-front restaurant and throughout the Park.

Other luncheon items featured are omelets, crepes and sandwiches (grilled cheese, chicken salad, bacon and tomato and grilled steak). The friendly staff at the Belle also stands ready to serve those in the mood for an afternoon cup of coffee along with a tasty waffle topped with strawberries and whipped cream.

Next time you visit the Park, treat your family to breakfast with a view before the start of your Disneyland Day.

LET'S GO TO THE MOVIES

A new animated feature to be released this summer, "The Fox and the Hound," promises to possess all the universal and timeless qualities that have become the hallmarks of Walt Disney animation.

In the tradition of past Disney animated favorites, the story becomes heartrending in places while retaining humorous sequences in others. The vocal talents of many well known personalities join the Disney family of cartoon characters, including those of Mickey Rooney, Jeanette Nolan, Pearl Bailey, Pat Buttram, Sandy Duncan, Kurt Russell and Jack Albertson.

An orphaned fox (Tod) and a hound pup (Copper) grow up as friends only to learn that they are supposed to act as natural enemies. Copper's owner, a cantankerous hunter named Amos Slade (Jack Albertson), and his older dog Chief soon teach Copper the skills of a professional hunting dog, and Tod learns the hard way that he should not rely upon their former friendship for protection.

For his safety, Tod (Mickey Rooney) is taken to a game preserve by his adopted owner, the Widow Tweed (Jeanette Nolan). There he loses his heart to a foxy lady named Vixey (Sandy Duncan). To continue with the story of Tod's and Vixey's escape from the hunters and Tod's heroic ventures to save both Copper and his master, would spoil the suspense of future moviegoers looking forward to Disney's 20th animated feature.

Production on "The Fox and the Hound" began in the Spring of 1977. At the cost of $12 million, this latest animated adventure is the most expensive film of its kind. Its release comes at a time when the medium of animation, which remains a hand-drawn art form, is gaining a worldwide increase in popularity and a new following from almost every age group. The art is actually on the brink of new horizons.

In color by Technicolor, this classic tale is from a story by Daniel Mannix, co-produced by Wolfgang Reitherman and Art Stevens, directed by Stevens, Ted Berman and Rick Rich under the executive producership of Ron Miller. It will be released by Buena Vista.

The Fox and The Hound

CONDORMAN

"Condorman," an August film release from Walt Disney Productions, is a comic adventure...unique in its concept about a cartoonist who assumes the identify of his creation so that he can aid in the defection of a beautiful Russian spy. The Technicolor film is based upon the book, "The Game of X," by Robert Sheckley, with the screenplay credits being shared by Marc Sturdivant, Glenn Caron and Mickey Rose.

Romantic settings in Europe—France, Monaco and Switzerland—were the photographic sites for shooting this exciting film. The action abounds with high-speed car chases, explosions and aerial performances on the Matterhorn and the Eiffel tower!

The actor who lives the adventures of his superhero, Condorman, by first living them himself is Michael Crawford who stars as Woody Wilkins, a very inventive comic book writer. Crawford performed his own stunts whenever possible.

Crawford is best remembered in the United States for roles in "The Knack" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," and forstarring opposite Barbra Streisand in "Hello Dolly." He has also appeared in "The Games" and on Broadway in Peter Shaffer's "Black Comedy," with Geraldine Page and Lynn Redgrave.

Oliver Reed, one of the film world's noted bad guys, stars as Krokov, the murderous leader of the Russian KGB. Krokov wants to recapture Natalia, a KGB agent played by Barbara Carrera, and also do away with Woody. Time and again he is foiled by the cartoonist's wild assortment of gadgets, taken straight from the Condorman comics.

Woody's comic book inventions, which include a machine gun/walking stick, a laser cannon, self-propelling jet rods to ride the cable on the Matterhorn, and his unreliable Condorman wings, were constructed by Academy Award ("Superman") winning special effects artist Colin Shilvers.

"Condorman" was directed by Charles Jarrott, produced by Ron Miller and co-produced by Jan Williams. Buena Vista will release the film in the summer of 1981.

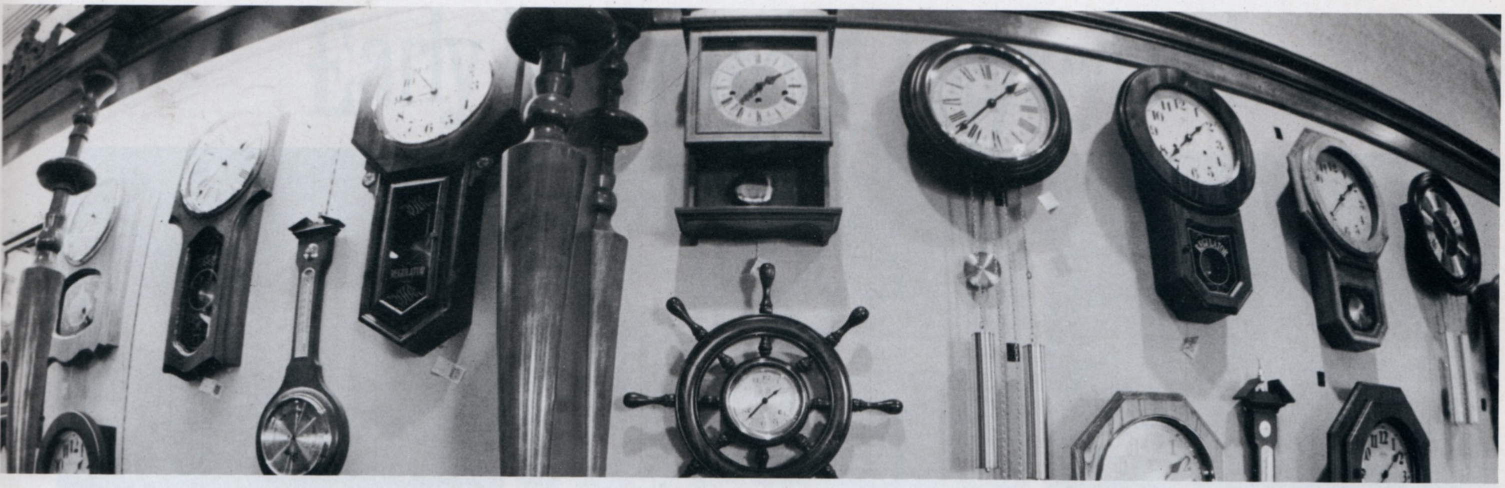
QUALITY ACCURACY



BROWSING TIME INSIDE THE MAGIC KINGDOM

It's a charming little place, that Elgin New Century Clock Shop inside the Walt Disney World Magic Kingdom; with just the ambience you might expect from a turn-of-the-century-styled establishment where time is of the essence.

Merchandise is displayed so as to provide a peek at some unique piece no matter which way you turn: an anniversary clock, elegant under its glass dome, over here on a behind-the-counter shelf...a "Nantucket," a clock encased in what looks like a sturdy steamboat steering wheel, on a wall over there...a wall clock designed like a giant Mickey Mouse wristwatch, in the corner.

And the sounds! You stand still for a few moments, and soon, you actually begin to identify the specific timepieces emitting some of the tickings, chimings, whirrings and other assorted mechanical murmurings that help make this place so wonderfully intriguing.

You take a fancy to a display of old-fashioned pocket watches, each of which bears the name and logo of a legendary railroad: Union Pacific, Green Bay Route, Southern Railway ("Serves the South"), Georgia R.R. ("Old Reliable...Service...Courtesy")...you picture in your mind a mustachioed stationmaster of days gone by, casting a critical glance at his pocketpiece as a steam-powered train chugs into the station.

Your Clock Shop hostess responds to your queries about certain timepieces with a pleasant smile and friendly manner: the anniversary clock, with its shiny, rotating, brass pendulum spheres, gives accurate time for 400 days with just one winding. And the "Westminster," encased in hardy oak, chimes every quarter-hour—just like the world-famous Westminster Abbey clock in England.

After awhile, the hostess's enthusiastic answers and explanations begin to suggest a second-nature knowledge of clocks. Eventually, she reveals that she collects antique clocks and that she currently possesses about 200 classic timepieces. And for some reason, you are thankful that the person who has witnessed your preoccupation with time's instruments also finds them a source of fascinating pleasure.

It was a magic moment for the Gert Schelvis family of Santa Barbara when, in January, Schelvis walked through the visitor turnstile at Disneyland to become the Park's 200 millionth guest.

Schelvis, 26, his wife Debbie, 26, and son Nicholas, 2, were greeted by Willie Van der Zwaag, the Disneyland 1981 Ambassador to the World. There, the surprised couple was presented with a lifetime pass to the Park plus other assorted gifts.

The Magic Kingdom in California is fast approaching the honor of having hosted the equivalent of the United States' entire population—a number set at just over 225,000,000!

Walt Disney greeted the first guests to enter the Park in 1955. They were Michael Schwartner, who was 7 at the time, and Christine Vess, 5. In 1971, Valerie Suldo, 22, of New Jersey, signed in as guest number 100 million.

The River Belle Terrace story elsewhere in this issue evoked memories of earlier eateries in Disneyland— back when the "Belle" was Aunt Jemima's Kitchen (from 1962 to 1970), sponsored by Quaker Oats. Going back even further, in 1955, the riverfront restaurant was first known as Aunt Jemima's Pancake House and was one of the few locations in the Magic Kingdom's first year of operation that offered a complete breakfast.

Another 1955 favorite refreshment stand was the American Dairy Association's "Dairy of Tomorrow" in Tomorrowland. Not only did it dispense cooling malts, shakes and ice cream, but it was featured as an attraction. It told "The Story of Milk," and forecast milkmen with portable helicopter-packs strapped to their backs delivering ever so fresh milk. It also predicted the use of air-conditioned barns featuring vitamin-producing and germ-killing overhead lighting systems.

From 1955 until 1964, when it was redesigned as the Plaza Inn, the Red Wagon Inn was the Park's most elegant dining place. Fashioned after the famed Delmonico's in New York City, it boasted a stained glass ceiling, leaded cut glass entrance doors, and hand-carved paneling...all of which were acquired from the St. James Mansion, an 1870 Los Angeles showplace near Adams and Figueroa.

Sometime between 1955 and 1961, you could buy a good old-fashioned fried chicken dinner at the pre-inflation price of $1.65 in the Chicken Plantation Restaurant in Frontierland. Set in a unique French Provincial and Southern Colonial-designed building near today's French Market location, the restaurant was reached by crossing the bridge over the then-existent waterway connecting the Rivers of America with the Jungle Cruise.

Both the Red Wagon Inn and Chicken Plantation were operated by Swift and Company, the participants who also provided catering service for Holidayland, which, at that time, earned them the title of "Official Caterers of Disneyland."

On Main Street, the Puffin Bake Shop, operated by General Mills, attracted the "sweet tooth" crowd, with fresh Danish pastries, doughnuts, rolls and cookies. They even created special birthday cakes decorated with Walt Disney cartoon characters.

All in all, the Disneyland food facilities have quite an interesting and colorful history. One that received few rave notices however, was a gum machine which was discovered just outside the Tomorrowland Space Bar—and quickly removed.

"SHOW BIZ IS" TOP

There's a brand new variety show on the Space Mountain Stage this summer, a happy entertaining musical that brings wild applause from Disneyland guests in the audience. The name of it is "Show Biz Is," and that's what it's all about—show biz, from vaudeville to movies to stage shows.

With the humorous and sometimes dubious help of Mickey, Minnie, Donald and Goofy and other Disney characters, a talented group of dancer/singers provides a colorful medley of music from many eras. This musical montage combines the tap dancing of vaudeville, the rhythms of Latin America and the precision of "A Chorus Line." Its performers barely pause for a breath between numbers as they race through costume changes at an unbelievably fast pace.

The five girls and five boys who are carrying on the tradition of the former "Kids of the Kingdom" are no strangers to the stage. Many have appeared in notable local and summer stock productions such as "Fiddler on the Roof," "West Side Story," "The Fantasticks" and "Music Man."

Dena Drotar, Donna Miller and Rick Lewis have performed for Marriott's Great America. Others have modeled and recorded. Joanne Mulrooney, Kimber Griffith, Stuart Marland, Greg Mowry, Donna Miller, Timothy Bagley and Dawn Parrish have performed in past Disneyland parades and musical groups. Two have understudied or played Snow White in outside productions. Dawn Parrish appeared in variety shows in the Orient, Pacific and the U.S.A. with the "Young Americans." Greg Mowry toured in foreign countries with the "Citrus Singers." You may have recognized Tony Vrab in television commercials. Joanne Mulrooney has been a Ram's Cheerleader. All ten have had intensive training in voice and dance.

Disneyland is extra proud of these young performers who create intricate dance patterns under the expert directorship of choreographer Barnette Ricci. One of the numbers is a takeoff on "Hollywood," with several of the players impersonating well-known stars. There's a lively chorus of Edgar Bergens, along with, wooden you know it—Charlie McCarthys.

Minnie Mouse does a wild tango in a colorful costume reminiscent of Carmen Miranda. Poor little Donald Duck forfeits his aplomb in the role of director when he fails in an attempt to seat his feathered bottom into a typically high director's chair!

"Show Biz Is" is fun to see. And you can see it five days a week this summer at Space Mountain in Tomorrowland. The music and dancing will bring a smile to your face and a pleasant reminder that there really is no business like show business!

Sparkling Evenings at the Lake Buena Vista Club®

Imagine yourself comfortably settled amidst the intimate atmosphere of an elegant, private club. A personable, tuxedoed wine captain glides to and fro, attending to your every need; the serving of a sumptuous gourmet meal, or perhaps, the cork-popping of a bottle of vintage wine.

As you savor your meal, you take in a stunning view of a moonlit lagoon, while a trio of strolling musicians lingers near your table, gently rendering a melodic offering you have specially requested.

After losing yourself in the musicians' sensitive stylings, you partake of the "house specialty"—a fiery, devilishly delicious concoction containing rum, liqueur, coffee and whipped cream. Cares and worries are light-years away.

This "dream" has become a dream-come-true for thousands of visitors to the Lake Buena Vista Club, located in the Walt Disney World Resort Community. While featuring all the lavish appointments and warm, attentive service of the most exclusive country club, the Lake Buena Vista Club's message to all would-be guests is: "You belong..."

Lake Buena Vista Club evenings, in particular, offer seekers of "the good life"—couples, singles, families, the young and the young-at-heart, a truly exceptional experience, enhanced by lush, foliaged surroundings, sparkling waters, personalized attention and expertly prepared gourmet meals, highlighted by such unforgettable entrees as Roasted Duck with orange sauce, Supreme of Red Snapper and Steak Diane Flambe.

Add to this gracious environment the stringed instrumentalizings of the "Dixie Deltas" (except Thursdays), an outstanding selection of fine wines, and the Club's own Café Buena Vista (that "devilish" potion mentioned earlier), and you might very well be "spoiled" by the time you have capped this captivating evening!

But do not be burdened with worries about this easy existence—the Lake Buena Vista Club is your club...so take time to enjoy!

Home Video

For the first time in the history of the Disney Studio, two of its animated features are being released in their entirety for the public to own.

Dumbo and The Many Adventures of Winnie the Pooh have just been added to the company's exciting list of new videocassette releases. They are available now.

And, as if that weren't enough, four of the most famous live-action classics ever produced by the Studio are also being released for home video buyers: Old Yeller, Davy Crockett and the River Pirates, The Absent-minded Professor and Gus.

There are also four new all-cartoon packages featuring Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Academy Award-winning shorts and Goofy Over Sports.

Also available are Snow White Live, the full version of the recent Radio City Music Hall production that created such a sensation in New York, and A Dream Called Walt Disney World...a lovely guided tour of the park itself.

Disney Videocassettes may be purchased or rented from authorized video dealers. To purchase cassettes directly from Disney, or to request a free color catalog, call toll free (800) 631-7345. (New Jersey residents, call collect (201) 272-3150.)

Movies

In addition to the excitement of the new animated feature, "The Fox and the Hound," and the brand-new comedy adventure, "Condorman" (stories elsewhere in this issue), this summer also heralds Disney's Summer Derby—three double bills featuring outstanding Disney favorites from the past.

Leading the parade of family fun is "Freaky Friday," a far-out farce featuring a teen-age girl, played by Jodie Foster, who has the unique opportunity to change places with her mother for a day filled with laughter.

On the bill with "Freaky Friday" is a most a-peeling comedy hit, "Herbie Goes Bananas." This time the loveable VW causes south-of-the-border disorder in several exotic Central American locations, including the Panama Canal. Cloris Leachman, Harvey Korman and Charles Martin Smith share in the fun.

The classic adventure of a family stranded on a desert island teams up with another Herbie re-release, "Herbie Rides Again," starring Helen Hayes. "Swiss Family Robinson," filmed in the West Indies, combines action, laughter, suspense and a charming love story.

"Herbie goes to Monte Carlo" pairs up with "The World's Greatest Athlete". This time, the venerable VW enters a cross-country race in France and falls in love with a powder-blue Lancia named Giselle. Dean Jones stars.

A light-hearted comedy about a jungle boy who unwittingly becomes the super-hero of the American sports world, "The World's Greatest Athlete," stars Jan-Michael Vincent.

All in all, Disney's Summer Derby's six films are guaranteed to deliver 500 smiles per hour.

Television

CBS-TV Entertainment and Walt Disney Productions recently reached an agreement which will bring a variety of Disney-produced shows to the CBS Television Network beginning with the 1981-1982 season, it was announced jointly by B. Donald Grant, president of CBS Entertainment, and Ron Miller, Disney's president and chief operating officer.

"Disney's Wonderful World," network television's longest-running prime time show, will no longer be aired over NBC after September, 1981. The Disney show originated in 1954 as "Disneyland" on ABC and switched to NBC in 1961 with the advent of color.

Three Disney television specials will be produced in the near future by Smith-Hemion Productions. The first will be "Walt Disney: The Man, The Artist, The Dreamer," which will combine documentary and dramatization formats with musical interpretation into a story of how a boy from Chicago became one of the greatest influences upon the American spirit. The second special will be a Christmas 1981 celebration of the 10th anniversary of Walt Disney World, shot on location in Orlando, Florida. And the third will be a two-hour extravaganza showcasing the October, 1982 opening of the EPCOT Center.

Music & Records

Disneyland Records has added a unique and exciting dimension to their best-selling catalog, Disney Picture Discs. Three classic Walt Disney motion pictures have been captured on these special albums. A breathtaking, full-color Disney illustration is included right in each record, featuring the best-loved characters and scenes from each film. There are also songs and music from the original motion picture, too. "Pinocchio," "Lady and the Tramp" and "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" are now available on Disney Picture Discs. Look for these beautiful collectibles in your record store now.

PLUS, Disney's brand new animated classic, "The Fox and the Hound" will also be appearing on a Disney Picture Disc this spring. You'll hear and see the exciting story in beautiful art, original character dialogue, music, songs and sound effects!
